1700 feet of highway completed and 1,000 feet more partly graded. It was most impossible to get help to work on the highways; it was not only here in this town, but the state department found it so all over the state.

It does not look very encouraging the coming year.
$2.50 per day was the price generally paid in the state.

GEORGE H. ABBOTT,

Auditors.

Your board respectfully submit their fifth report. We have tried to conduct the affairs of the town on business principles and be faithful to the trust you have imposed upon us with such unanimity each year. In place of a debt five years ago of $41,235.74, the Town now, after paying all debts, has a balance in favor of the town of $2,444.31, the first time in twenty years that there has been any balance in favor of the Town.

In the Bay State Street R. R. case, although not as favorable as we hoped, but under the conditions of the road we did the best we could and the school children rate of four cents from Stewart's corner to the Bridge and Nashua Main St., we were fortunate in getting.

HENRY C. BROWN,
FRANK A. CONNELL,
JOHN A. ROBINSON,
Selectmen of Hudson.

It Isn't Your Town—It's You

If you want to live in the kind of a town
 That's the kind of a town you like,
 You needn't slip your clothes in a grip
 And start on a long, long hike.

You'll find elsewhere what you left behind,
 For there's nothing that's really new,
 It's a knock at yourself when you knock your town :

It isn't your town—it's you.

Real towns are not made by men afraid
 Lest somebody else gets ahead.
 When everybody works and nobody shirks
 You can raise a town from the dead.

And if while you make your personal stake
 Your neighbor can make one, too,
 Your town will be what you want to see,
 It isn't your town—it's you.

A true copy of Warrant—Attest:

HENRY O. SMITH,
HENRY C. BROWN,

School Board of Hudson, N. H.

SCHOOL REPORT

To the Citizens of the District:

The legislature, at its last session, saw fit to prolong the present fiscal year of the school districts, making it end Aug. 31st. For that reason the treasurer of the district does not present her usual detailed report, but submits the financial standing on Feb. 1st.

It is necessary for the district at its annual meeting to make sufficient appropriations to support the schools until Sept., 1919.

This action of the legislature so far as appropriations are concerned, simply makes imperative what the district has voluntarily done for a number of years.

Our relations with the "Junior High School" of Nashua are still unsettled. If it were given the status of an approved high school by the state authorities your school board would be authorized to pay the tuition of the children attending its second year. Up to the time of this writing, Feb. 15th, the State authorities have persistently refused to take any action in this matter, although repeatedly requested to do so by your superintendent and the school board. A special article in the warrant will enable you to take such action as you may wish with regard to paying such tuition.

Mr. Winslow, our superintendent, resigned in September, after several years of faithful service.

The supervisory district has selected to fill the vacancy a man of much experience and high qualifications whose report is appended.

As required by law we submit the following estimate:

For flags and appurtenances,	$10:00
For text books and supplies	300 00
For high school tuition,	1,800 00

Respectfully submitted,

HENRY O. SMITH,
LETTIE V. LESLIE,
HENRY C. BROWN,

School Board of Hudson.

SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT

To the School Board and Citizens of Hudson :

I herewith submit my first annual report as Superintendent of Schools, the fourteenth in the series of superintendent's reports.

As it was the middle of October when I assumed the duties of the office the general plans for the year had been made and the work well going. My report apart from the statistical tables can apply only to the few months that I have been here and must of necessity be of a general nature.

First permit me to compliment you and Mr. Winslow upon the excellent general conditions that prevailed throughout the district. With very few exceptions I found the teachers competent and conscientiously working for the best interests of the schools. In many instances I found these teachers showing a whole-hearted zeal in their work that I have rarely seen surpassed. The influence of such teachers reacts in a wholesome way not only on their classes, but also on other teachers with whom they come into contact.

Of course there were some whose professional aims have as yet risen very little above the perfunctory performance of requirements. Like the great mass of people in general, their failure to rise to higher ideals is due not to lack of good intentions, but to lack of vision. However practically all were doing good work; some were doing excellent work.

In fitting boys and girls for life two fundamental principles must be observed. The first is to teach them how to live, the second to train them in some practical line to fit them to earn a living. In general it is with the first of these only that the elementary schools are concerned. The training for a trade or a profession belongs of necessity to the adolescent, or post adolescent period in the child's development—to the period of secondary school education, and as the district has not established a high school this work of fitting boys and girls to earn a living is one regarding which the school department has no responsibility laid upon it.

In so far as the elementary schools are concerned in fitting a child for life, it is their duty to give him:

1. A good working knowledge of the fundamentals of reading, arithmetic, history, geography, etc., and with these such a taste for good reading as will make him a reader of good books, whether or not he goes farther with his education.

2. Habits of industry, of honesty of thought and of obedience to constituted authority. These habits should be established, not so much by dogma as by the exacting of industry, respect and honesty in every school exercise.

3. Such a taste for the pure and the true in reading, in thought and in living that when maturity is reached, active life in the world may be taken up without handicaps.

4. The foundations for a store of resources, which may be drawn upon as life demands. That person who has not learned to provide himself with resources for his own mental and spiritual enjoyment but is dependent upon outside resources, has failed to make provision for the many hours in life that he must spend with only himself for company.

In furnishing young people with this equipment for life, the home must co-operate with the school. In fact, apart from the purely book work, much of this can be much better done by the home than by the school.

Teachers and parents should get together and understand each other. Their viewpoints will be widely different, but both right. To the parent the child is "different from other children" and is to be treated with more attention and sympathy than other children. To the teacher he is one of a class of forty, and as such is to be treated without favor or partiality. Each is correct in his respective attitude if the child is to get the opportunity for an all round development.

The child has a right to feel that he can with confidence go to the parent for sympathy in his mistakes—even in his childish wrong-doing. He has a right to feel that there is one place in the world where he can go when life looks dark and the world seems against him. On the other hand in the school he must be made to feel that he is a member of a community and that when he has violated the reasonable regulations of that community or has done that which brings discredit upon it, the manly thing to do is to stand and face the consequences and in so far as is possible make things right.

To the parent belongs the duty of fostering the finer, the sentimental side of the child: to the teacher the duty of training him to stand and face life without flinching. Both sides of his character must be developed.

It is wise therefore for parents and teachers to get together, each accepting and respecting the work of the other, and co-operate.

Along these general lines the conduct of the boys and girls gives evidence of careful, strong work in both the schools and the homes. Exceptions are rare and stand out in marked contrast to the large majority.

In so far as I have got into the work of the schools, I have found it good, forceful and accurate. Pupils are active and interested and are showing good mental development.

The work in practical arts is on a good basis. The boys are showing interest, in many cases enthusiasm for, manual training work; skill in hand work is carrying with it intellectual development.

The work in sewing and cooking for the girls is equally good and efficient and eventually will give large return in better and more economical home-makers. Too much cannot be said in commendation of these lines of work.

It is imperative that we all do everything in our power to keep our young people in school, that they may be fitted for the work that the nation will call them to do. Never before has there been such a drain upon the colleges and upon the young professional men of the country as has been made by the raising and equipping of our vast new army. And we must face the fact that the end is not in sight. Doctors, lawyers, civil engineers, teachers, scientists have gone into this business of war at the nation's call. Many, very many of them will not return. As rapidly as possible the boys of today must be fitted to take up the work which they at such a sacrifice laid aside. Our civilization, our very life and standing as a nation, demands it.

Therefore, notwithstanding the temptations of high wages and the demands of industrial conditions, we must keep the youth at their studies that they may be fitted for the increased demands that the nation will make upon them.

The work of the boys' and girls' club last year was a splendid success in this community, but indications point to even better work next year. The boys and girls are already making their plans for gardens, for canning, or for keeping a pig. In one school when I asked how many were planning on a garden, four out of every five hands came up with enthusiasm.

They had thought it out and were getting their plans into shape. Six out of this same school said that they intended keeping pigs.

I desire to express my appreciation of the cordial support accorded me by committee and teachers.

Respectfully submitted,

J. A. MacDOUGALL.
